EUR 2.000.-

Not in Heidtmann. A very scarce photographically illustrated book representing the wall frieze in Marienburg castle near Hanover. The artist Wilhelm Engelhard (1813–1902), from Grünhagen in Lüneburg was trained since 1837 with the support of the Queen of Hanover as a sculptor at the Polytechnic School in Hanover. He then had further training in Copenhagen and Munich. He remained in the Bavarian capital until 1848, then he moved to Hamburg to work as a painter. In 1851 he made the first draft for a relief frieze with a total of 18 images of the Edda. In 1859 appointed by King George V of Hanover as a court painter, he immediately started with the execution of the Edda frieze in Marienburg Castle, which was built from 1858–1867 as a summer residence of Queen Marie of Hanover in the Gothic Revival style. A suite was published in 1859 with the etching „Saga - the heroic muse of the North“ and a total of eight etchings by Oswald Ufer (1828–1883) after scenes from the Edda frieze. All together the photographs comprise a panoramic image measuring over 4 meters ! Fine. Only two copies traced on OCLC – British Library and National Library in Denmark.

Erkki Huhtamo, Illusions in motion p. 104, 194, 218-219 and passim. William Beverly (ca 1814-1889) was one of the active scene painters who began to create moving panoramas for the London public. Beginning in the 1820's with Clarkson Stanfield's moving panorama with a view of the city of York the number of such shows increased from year to year. They had an overwhelming success and the craze for this kind of entertainment lasted almost till the end of the 19th century. Half-title removed, title with small tear in upper margin restored, following leaf with lower right corner restored. Front paste-down with dated manuscript signature 'Thomas Henry Baldwin 1866'. Inventor of three and four colour printing passim and p. 102 (for this edition). First edition and first reprint of the original text of Le Blon's Coloritto (1725) but without the plates. The first part contains the slightly altered reprint of the text of Coloritto in English and French (pp. 13-71); the second part titled: Opérations nécessaires pour graver et imprimer des estampes, à l'imitation de la peinture, selon les systèmes de J. C. Le Blon (pp. 73-158) with detailed instructions of Le Blon's working procedure. A third part contains a further index titled: Extrait de la table des matières contenus dans le traité d'Abraham Bosse (pp. 159-180). "It is wrong to consider this book a second edition of Coloritto as the literature dealing with it nearly always does. L'Art d'Imprimer les Tableaux is an important work in its own right. It describes Coloritto and for the first time discusses very knowledgeably Le Blon's system and the details of his working procedure. A very strong clue to the authorship of this book is given by the words: verbal instructions. ... Montdorge knew Le Blon since his arrival in Paris and had assisted him in obtaining the first privilege. The chapter (in L'Art d'Imprimer les Tableaux) starts with the supposed invention of printing from engraved plates by Maso Finiguerra and finishes by mentioning the third edition of Abraham Bosse's book published in 1745 (see the following) which already refers to Le Blon's work (covering pages 123-128). Its author must be Montdorge, who had the most detailed knowledge of Le Blon's secrets and working methods" (O. M. Lilien p. 102). Palette-plate trimmed at fore-edge with slight loss to the image, touching only the outer part of the pallete, exactly in the same way the palette-plate was trimmed in the copy of the De Vitry sale Geometry and Space no. 515.

Third edition with emendations and additions by the French artist Charles-Nicolas Cochin fils and the first to contain the treatise by Montdorge on colour engraving after Le Blon covering pages 123-128. "La publication de Bosse est tout à fait remarquable. Il tient absolument la promesse qu'il fait dans sa préface en déclarant qu'il a l'intention de décrire sa manière de travailler avec "toute la franchise et naïveté" qui lui a été possible. Mis à part quelques détails de langue, un graveur d'aujourd'hui un peu au fait de son métier peut le suivre pas à pas et en tirer profit" (Catalogue BNF p. 227). An interesting sammelband on colour printing and engraving assembled by a knowledgeable contemporary with an interest in printing and engraving methods. A nice copy.

Thieme-Becker XXXIV, 422 (for the artist Francois-Xavier Vispré, Besancon ca 1730, died sometimes after 1780 in London). First German edition. Name and date on title G. V. Dillis 1818, possibly the German painter and art teacher Johann Georg von Dillis (1759-1841), who nowadays is regarded as one of the most eminent German painters in the period around 1800 (Lenbachhaus in Munich). The book conceived in form of a dialogue between the artist Vispré and a French Marquise is about the teaching of various painting techniques, the manufacture of colours and on painting equipment. Vispré was known for a special glas painting technique which is also discussed in this text. "Inserierte (in Paris)

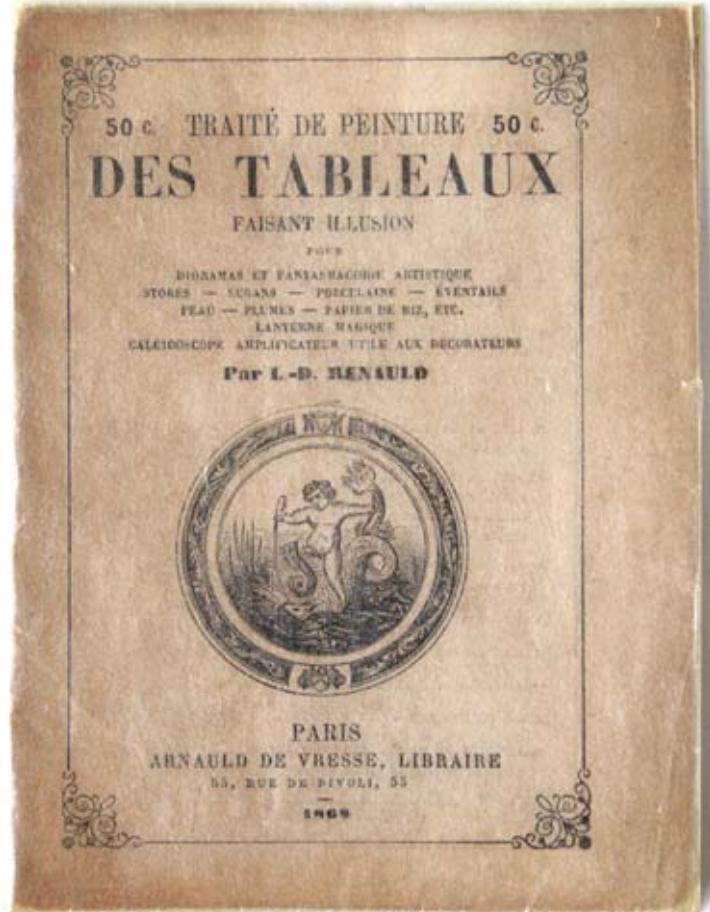

1755/70 seine auf Glas gem. Bilder (Blumen, Früchte, Vögel und Chinoiserien aller Art)" (Thieme-B. S. 422). The translator Prange (1756-1836) writes in the foreword to his work Die Schule der Mahlerey. Nebst einem Anhang von der Kunst und in drey Stunden ein Mahler zu werden, published in 1782: "Was den Anhang betrifft, von der Kunst (...), so erschien davon schon im Jahr 1779 eine Uebersetzung aus dem Französischen. Das Original hatte den Titel: L'art de devenir peintre en trois heures. A Paris 1750. und war durch die Neugierde des Publikums eben so selten geworden, als es beynahe anjetzt die Uebersetzung ist."

First edition. André Rouquet (1703–1759), was a reknowned enamel painter, who developed special techniques for his own use, but never made them publicly known and so they got lost after his untimely death in the Charenton in Paris. The present work provides a comprehensive overview of English art, arts and crafts in all its branches. In addition to painting and sculpture, he also deals with the graphics and their various printing techniques, gold and silver forging, jewelery, porcelain, music and theater. One chapter describes „the decoration of the boutiques et les ventes de tableaux“. The work is dedicated to the Marquis de Marigny, a brother of the Madame de Pompadour. A fine copy.

Karl Heinrich Wenng
Erfinder des Kunstdrucks ohne Presse
und der neuen Zeichnungskunst

Wenng, Karl Heinrich. (Nördlingen 1787-1850 Stuttgart). Self portrait. No place and year (ca 1845-1850). Various colours on thick paper, with manuscript title underneath the image: In C. H. Wenng's Erfindung gemacht (that is: Made in his own colour printing technique). Image size: 166 x 133 mm. Lower margin with manuscript signature and entry by him: Erfinder des Kunstdrucks ohne Presse/und der neuen Zeichnungskunst. (inventor of a new method of printing in colours without a press, ...). Sheet size: 335 x 248 mm.

EUR 2.000.-

One of the very rare preserved samples of Wenng's colour printing technique without a press, invented by him around 1845, and with its astonishing possibilities and applications described in a small brochure published in 1848 in Munich by G. Franz: "Die Geschichte und Leistungen der neuen Erfindung: Kunstdruck ohne Presse nebst ihren Zweigen; Spiegelbildzeichnung, Perspectivaufnahme, Farbenauftrag und einer neuen Handzeichnungs-Methode für Kunstakademien und Kunstschulen". However, the description was kind of vague, probably because of patent reasons so although published his invention remained a secret, which Nagler, mentioned in his article in the Allgemeinen Künstlerlexikon (XXIV, 123): "Die Erfindung ist aber noch Geheimnis, so dass über die Manipulation und die Art der Hervorbringung der Zeichnungen und Abdrücke nichts verlautet". Wenng died already two years later and his invention remained a mystery from that time on. Our copy from the library of the Wittelsbacher in Tegernsee castle, whom Wenng personally did send this image with the accompanying text probably to get some funding from the Bavarian state for his invention.

Gaspard Grégoire, (1751–1846), descendant of a wealthy silktrading family became famous because of an invention to create chromatic velvet images by using various coloured threads in the weaving process. "Some 100 years before Albert Munsell developed his color order system, French silk merchant and inventor of a technology for producing works of art in silk velours, Gaspard Grégoire, introduced a color order system based on the color attributes hue, (relative) chroma, and lightness. Conceived in the mid-1780s, an atlas with 1350 samples was produced before 1813 and found use in French Royal manufacturing operations and educational institutions. It was followed a few years later by one with 343 samples. Grégoire's work was subsequently overshadowed by Michel-Eugène Chevreul's more complicated and less intuitive hemispherical system of 1839." Promotional album by a paper cutting artist illustrated with his paper-cuts and photographed by himself. "George Schmidt, the celebrated and only psaligrapher, has exhibited his peculiar art before H. M. the Queen Victoria, also the Emperor of France, the Governor General of the Island of Cuba, and other most prominent persons and artists, and has brought to perfection the highly difficult science of creating the most natural and expressive pictures and scenes, even of incredible smallness, by a simple pair of scissors and a piece of black paper. Induced by a great many of his friends and admirers of his art, he offers in this album the photographs of some of the best pictures, he has cut out with a common pair of scissors. For originals, cut with scissors, apply to the publisher, 47 East Houston Street, N. Y." (foreword). OCLC with four copies (Metropolitan Museum, Yale, Vermont and Huntington).

A beautiful sammelband about some of the sculptures of this most important 19th century Russian collection of antique Greek and Roman statues and sculptures brought together by the French born architect, collector and art and architectural author August Ricard de Montferrand. All three works in first edition with broad margins, and light foxing to a few pages. Front endleaf with restored lower corner. Henri Louis Auguste Ricard de Montferrand, actually Henri Louis Auguste Ricard (1786, Paris–1858, Saint Petersburg), a French architect, received his education at Charles Percier's and Pierre François Leonard Fontaine's academy, the two house architects of Napoleon. After initial activity in Paris, he left for Russia in 1814, where he was appointed by Tsar Alexander I to his court architect. Numerous civil and religious buildings in the classical style, especially in St. Petersburg but also in Moscow and other Russian cities had been planned and built by him, including his most important work, the St. Isaac's Cathedral, whose golden dome dominates the skyline of St. Petersburg. He oversaw the construction project from 1818 to 1858, when the largest Orthodox church in the world had finally been completed. Other important projects are the Ministry of War (1820) and the Alexander Column in front of the Winter Palace (1829) in St. Petersburg, the exhibition center in Nizhny Novgorod, the redesign of the park and the pavilion of the summer residence of the tsars Katarinenhof. In the 1830's he began to collect intensey Roman and Greek ancient statues. In 1858 when he died his collection numbered more than 110 statues and hundreds of smaller artifacts. After the Hermitage refused to buy this most significant collection of antiques in 19th century Russia it was dispersed by auction. - KVK and OCLC with only 3 copies of this sammelband. - Getty, LA; V&A, London and Biblioteca della Fondazione Giorgio Cini, Venedig. The German Herzogin Anna Amalia library in Weimar with only the second part of this sammelband, the third part was destroyed in the great fire in the library in 2004. A nice copy.
